

University of North Carolina at Greensboro School of Music

Graduate Assistantship in Bassoon

The Bassoon Graduate Assistant will work closely with Dr. Michael Burns in all aspects of the bassoon studio. This may include applied and small ensemble instruction. Other support duties in the School of Music will be required. Qualifications include a superior performance ability and record of successful teaching.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

Master of Music • Master of Music Education

Doctor of Philosophy in Music Education • Doctor of Musical Arts

STIPENDS*

Master's Degrees: $4,500 • Doctoral Degrees: $8,500

TUITION WAIVERS

Out-of-State & In-State Tuition Waivers may be available

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Dr. Michael Burns, Associate Professor of Bassoon

Office: 336.334.5970 • Email: mjburns@uncg.edu

For more information about our assistantships, visit <http://www.uncg.edu/mus/Assistantships.html>

The deadline for graduate assistantship consideration is February 27, 2010. An on-campus audition or interview is required for all Graduate Assistant applicants.

*stipends may increase

The UNCG School of Music, a member of NASM since 1938, is the only institution in North Carolina offering comprehensive degrees in music and music education from the baccalaureate through the doctorate, including a B.A. in music and an M.M. in music theory. Over 60 faculty members teach a student body of more than 600 majors. The School's alumni have, for years, distinguished themselves in important professional positions throughout the world, while its justly renowned student ensembles continue to perform frequently in prestigious state, regional, and international settings. Since 1999, the School has occupied a new state-of-the-art building that affords students and faculty an outstanding environment for all aspects of music study and performance.

Greensboro, equidistant between Atlanta and Washington, DC, between the mountains and the seashore, has recently been designated an All-American City. It is extremely arts-oriented and, along with its sister cities in the "Triad" (Winston-Salem and High Point), provides a vital cultural stimulus to the entire Piedmont region.

THE UNIVERSITY of NORTH CAROLINA
GREENSBORO